Act-Belong-Commit

Volunteering to help others, if you have the time, is probably one of the best ways to feel good about yourself and strengthen your own mental health. There is something naturally satisfying about knowing you have made a difference in someone's life.

Volunteering can give people a purpose in life – which is a great contributor to one’s mental health. Helping out at a school canteen, or the footy club, or through Lions or Rotary clubs, or visiting someone who is housebound, makes for a stronger community.

The Act-Belong-Commit Campaign is spreading the word about keeping mentally healthy. Make a commitment to help another person or be involved in an organisation. This gives you a purpose and a great opportunity to regularly get out of the house, meet and chat with other like-minded people in your community. The stronger the community we live in, the better for our mental health.

The Act-Belong-Commit Campaign is an initiative of the Hume Region integrated health promotion working group.
