Celebrate family, culture and community

Belonging and contributing to family, culture
and community
is important for your baby's
identity,
learning and development.

- How do your family and friends spend time together? Meals and special events are a great chance for your baby to connect with and learn from others.
- Talk about things your baby shows you—they might like showing others too!
- Share lots of books and stories with your baby about different people and places.
- Where can your baby meet new people? Playgroup, the library, park or pool are great places to make new friends.
